Louma Bakery website

PAGES: HOME - OUR STORY - THE LOUMA INITIATIVE - MENU- SHOP

- Home page edit the layout with the right photography and good spacing
- Alignment of sizing across all pages
- Header and footer that look clean and has the right sizing
- The cleaner the better
- Link instagram on the bottom or just photos with links to instagram could be nice like this:https://www.lannanbakery.com/

Design edits and rules

- No photos with rounded edges
- Use the correct brand colors
- all photos should be straight not tilted
- Use only our actual drawings from the brand book, you can animate some if you want
- I like isaam footer don’t change that !
- All logo and font should be from my branding (owners or reglo)

Websites references, pages and layout wise

https://www.lannanbakery.com/

https://www.hanisnyc.com/

https://www.junothebakery.com/

https://oliveateliers.com/

https://laylabakery.com/

https://bubandgrandmas.com/ (for their color choices and drawings)

Homepage (mostly photos and general info)

Small Description:
A sister-run neighborhood bakery in Santa Monica

Location between photos and hours

3223 Wilshire Blvd,	Tuesday to Sunday	7.30am - 2.30pm
Santa Monica, CA 90403	Monday	Closed

More text to use on homepage:

Louma Bakery is rooted in European baking traditions with a Lebanese twist. We serve slow-fermented breads, classic pastries, seasonal offerings, and great coffee and matcha. From delicate viennoiserie and organic sourdough, to nostalgic Lebanese classics such as our za'atar croissant and kaak bread.

Our small team bakes everything daily from scratch in our open kitchen on Wilshire Blvd- each component of our menu is crafted with care and invites you into our story.

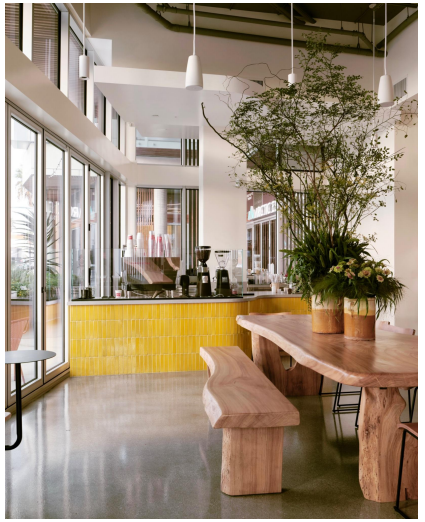

Link instagram on the bottom or just photos with links to instagram could be nice like this:https://www.lannanbakery.com/

Photos for homepage that i like

Our story page

Can use this letter in the beginning

Louma Bakery is named after my sister and a tribute to the warmth of her presence. A friend once said, "Being around Louma is like pulling fresh cookies from the oven." She teaches us to savor the little moments. To me, her spirit has always embodied the values of a great neighbourhood bakery- comfort, connection, and community.

Our West LA kitchen is rooted in European baking traditions with a Levantine twist. We serve fresh breads, classic pastries, and seasonal offerings; think organic seeded sourdough meets our house-made fattoush salad.

Alongside our commitment to artisanal baking, our mission is to create supportive training and employment opportunities for individuals with learning and developmental differences in a professional bakery setting. Grounded in Louma's own experience, we believe that everyone deserves an opportunity to grow, contribute, and cultivate their passion. All profits from the bakery will go directly to our nonprofit parent, the Louma Initiative, a 501(c)(3) public charity that fosters meaningful opportunities for people with intellectual and developmental differences.

Dedicated to my sister and her sweet tooth, Louma Bakery is a space to meet each other where we are and share in good food.

She's so excited to have you!

Milla

Our story page

More text:

Named after our sister

Louma Bakery is named after my sister, Louma. A friend once said that being around her is like pulling fresh cookies from the oven, and that's the best description of her we've ever heard. She has a serious sweet tooth, a gift for bringing people together, and a way of making you slow down, enjoy the moment, and smile.

Opening a bakery was her dream first. When we started building it, we kept asking one question: what would a place that feels like Louma look like? Warm, generous, and open to everyone. That's what we set out to make.

Sister-run

Louma is run by sisters, each of us bringing something different to the table. We grew up in Los Angeles, and this bakery is our love letter to the city that raised us.

Our roots, on the plate

Our kitchen is grounded in classic European baking, with the flavors we grew up with in a Lebanese home. Think za'atar croissants, labneh, kaak breads, orange-blossom brioche buns, and rose water infused drinks..

Some recipes come straight from our family kitchen. Our granola is my older sister's recipe: toasted nuts, seeds, and oats with honey and maple syrup, our favorite healthy snack to have at home.

Ingredients we care about

We source our za'atar,orange-blossom water, rose water, and pomegranate molasses from Lebanon, because those flavors should taste the way we remember them. Our butterand pastry flour are imported from France by partners we trust, our olive oil is Greek, and our organic bread flour and rye seeds come from Utah. Our matcha and hojicha powders come directly from Japan, and our coffee is roasted here in Los Angeles by our neighbors at Goodboybob.

Stay a while

We don’t think a sense of belonging can be manufactured. It grows slowly through small, everyday moments: neighbors saying good morning, friends gathering to catch up and enjoy a special treat, and familiar faces becoming part of the rhythm of the bakery. Louma is here most days welcoming people in, and she's so excited to have you.

Photos for our story that can work

Louma Bakery is named after my sister and a tribute to the warmth of her presence. A friend once said, "Being around Louma is like pulling fresh cookies from the oven." She teaches us to savor the little moments. To me, her spirit has always embodied the values of a great neighbourhood bakery- comfort, connection, and community.

Our West LA kitchen is rooted in European baking traditions with a Levantine twist. We serve fresh breads, classic pastries, and seasonal offerings; think organic seeded sourdough meets our house-made fattoush salad.

Alongside our commitment to artisanal baking, our mission is to create supportive training and employment opportunities for individuals with learning and developmental differences in a professional bakery setting. Grounded in Louma's own experience, we believe that everyone deserves an opportunity to grow, contribute, and cultivate their passion. All profits from the bakery will go directly to our nonprofit parent, the Louma Initiative, a 501(c)(3) public charity that fosters meaningful opportunities for people with intellectual and developmental differences.

Dedicated to my sister and her sweet tooth, Louma Bakery is a space to meet each other where we are and share in good food.

She's so excited to have you!

Milla

THE LOUMA INITIATIVE

No photos for now

Text

From the beginning, our vision has been clear: pair exceptional baking with real, life-changing opportunities.
People with disabilities are deeply underrepresented in hospitality, an industry with so much room for growth, creativity, and community. We want to help change that.

We grew up hanging out in our family's kitchen, and some of our closest moments as sisters happened there. So that's where we started. Inspired by Louma's own experience with intellectual and developmental differences, we set out to build a bakery where people of all abilities can learn, work, and feel valued. Everyone deserves the chance to build skills, gain confidence, and be part of a team that sees their talent.

Opening doors

Our training and employment program is up and running. Our mission-based staff train alongside our team, learning skills they can take anywhere: food prep, packaging, customer service.

We partner with Breaking Barriers, an organization that specializes in supported employment. Their job coaches work one-on-one with our mission-based staff on site, so everyone has the support they need from day one. The goal is simple: real pathways into meaningful work, and more independence along the way.

Built to last

Louma Bakery is owned by The Louma Initiative, a registered 501(c)(3) nonprofit. The Initiative supports people with intellectual and developmental differences through four pillars: employment, research, education, and community outreach. The bakery is the employment pillar in action, and all of its profits go directly back to the Initiative. Every coffee and croissant helps fund the rest of that work.

MENU PAGE DESIGN

Look at this : https://www.libraebakery.com/menu/

I like the pacing and the little animations we can do that with all our little drawings in small

DO NOT INCLUDE PRICES ON THE WEBSITE (I sent you the menu in the email attachment)

Doesnt need photos on this page

TEXT:

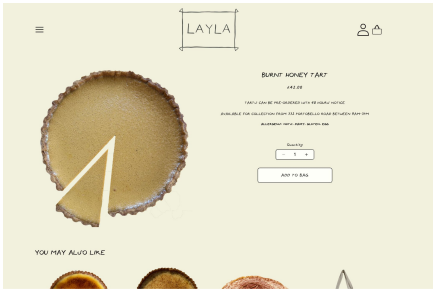

MENU
We make everything in-house, from dough to filling, in our open-plan kitchen.
Our menu changes with the seasons, as we strive to use fresh ingredients as much as possible, however you'll always find a few Louma classics on our counter.
Alongside the pastry case, you'll find salads and sandwiches for lunch, granola to take home, and a full coffee, matcha, and tea bar.
We're a small-batch bakery and sometimes the good stuff goes early.We recommend coming before 10 AM for the widest selection.

SHOP (coming soon)

Pre-orders, gift cards (linked to square page), and shop for merch (i just have my hat right now).

I prefer to have one page for all of them like Layla bakery but not sure how it works, we can also do it like Lannan bakery with 2 pages.

I want ALL product to look like this style with no background:

Text:
“Pre-order your favourite tartes, pastries, and cakes in advance, for collection in person. Needs 48 hours notice.”

Photos for SHOP that i like

Louma Hat $32
try it without background

Text :
Louma logo front and side embroidered hat

one size

PHOTOS

https://www.dropbox.com/scl/fo/qc1s2uiuwobc9sur46kkj/AGdZtI5BBnuzfD5qDUp19wg?rlkey=ml79nygh4tpwd6o45by0656hn&st=8k1iad2h&dl=0

contact

contact@loumabakery.com
orders@loumabakery.com for larger orders
Instagram @loumabakery

Come say hi with address and this photo like this instead of google maps:

